Tips for Organizing and Planning

- Good descriptions are carefully organized.

- Focus on big ideas first. What are the most important characteristics of the subject?

- Don't try to include too many characteristics. Make sure you cover the most important points.

- Find facts and information to support your main characteristics.

- Select vivid and interesting details that will surprise and stimulate your reader.

- Use details only if you find them really interesting. Get rid of "hum drum" information.
